

EASTER SUNRISE

Young sun, thicking up,
Trick my surprise and differ it
Into shuffling rocks, clacking
Under a shuffling sea.

My guess was: you monstrate,
So brilliant spearing up.
But Easter Morning trundled in
On wheeling waves;
No light slogging orange in the troughs.

Derek Birrelton